David Quisenberry is a senior vice president of agency leasing for North Texas in the Dallas-Fort Worth office of AvisonYoung. He is responsible for agency leasing services and new business development throughout the region. David's extensive career experience has been focused on the building owners' side in the North Texas commercial real estate market.

Prior to joining Avison Young, David operated his own company, which was focused on office tenant representation. He also worked for Hines as a senior director focused on office building and land acquisition, build-to-suit, and leasing services. Prior to Hines, David spent 27 years with Lincoln Property Company where he worked in all areas of office leasing, development and related construction and marketing strategies.
